Mr. Prime Minister,
Am I right it worked out? I was with no Comms for 2 days. I hope you got the report.
I think about your nation every day, this is a tough time,
Our very best,
RP

> We wrote this report with the assumption that you are not aware of any specific topics to be discussed or agenda to be covered in your meetings with President Mahama (similar to the framing of the Nigeria briefing last summer). We recognize that this assumption may be incorrect. Still, we wanted to provide a full overview of the issues that are likely of greatest concern to him currently so you can be prepared for any topic that may arise.

It's also worth mentioning that anti-Mahama protests sprung up in Accra this week over high costs of living and the administration's handling of Ghana's ongoing economic crisis. Yesterday's demonstration, in which thousands of workers took to the streets, has been dubbed "Black Thursday." These protests could signal growing unrest in the country, but are not currently considered a significant threat to national security.

We hope you'll find this briefing helpful and informative. If there are any topics you'd like to discuss, please let us know.

Best of luck on your visit and safe travels.

Best,
Evan
